

Chris Riley
Vice President and General Manager
Americas Enterprise Storage

HEWLETT-PACKARD COMPANY

Chris Riley is vice president and general manager of the Americas Enterprise Storage Division at HP. In this role, Riley is responsible for the management of HP's Americas Enterprise Storage Sales and Marketing teams, delivering profitable business results, executing a go-to-market strategy that meets the needs of HP's diverse client base, while delivering the highest level of client satisfaction.

Riley joined HP in February 2008 and immediately launched an ambitious initiative to transform the Americas Storage Sales team into a world class organization that consistently delivered positive growth results. His successful implementation of this program and his positive impact with HP and with Customers and Partners earned him a promotion to Vice President and General Manager of the Americas Division in November 2009. Chris' continued commitment to customer satisfaction, operational excellence, and a collaborative relationship with strategic partners, has recently positioned HP's Enterprise Storage organization as a leading provider of solutions that meets customer's most challenging business issues.

During the past 25 years, Riley spent 12 years with EMC Corporation and has held a variety of executive leadership and sales management positions within the technology industry for companies such as Comdisco, CNT, and MCDATA. Riley was also a co-founder of privately held GiantLoop Network, Inc.

Riley holds a Bachelors degree in Finance from the University of Connecticut where he currently serves on the Foundation Board of Directors and leads various subcommittees. As a resident of Naples, Florida, Riley, his wife Mary and their four children remain actively involved in community initiatives and charities focused on Youth Development and Mentorship.
