

Executive Biography

Lynn Anderson

Senior Vice President and Chief of Staff, Communications
Hewlett-Packard Company

---

Lynn Anderson is senior vice president and chief of staff, HP Communications. In this role, Anderson is responsible for leading global media relations and industry analyst relations for HP's business groups, including the Enterprise Group, Printing and Personal Systems, HP Software, and Enterprise Services.

Previously, she was vice president and acting Chief Communication officer, reporting to CEO Meg Whitman. Anderson is responsible for leading global media relations, internal and external communications and industry analyst relations across HP.

Prior to this role, Anderson was vice president of Influencer Marketing for the Enterprise Business Group. In this role, Anderson led integrated worldwide influencer communications to position HP as the leader in the enterprise and mid-market segments.

Anderson has also served as vice president, marketing and alliances at HP Canada, and was a member of the HP Canadian Leadership Team. Additionally, she led Corporate Marketing, including HP's efforts to promote corporate social responsibility.

Anderson joined HP in 1983 as a systems engineer, and has held a number of executive roles in both technical and communication capacities.

Anderson holds a Bachelor of Science degree in Computer Science from Acadia University in Nova Scotia, Canada.